

Advising as a Retention Strategy

Charlie Nutt

Abstract

Student retention and persistence continues to grow in its importance on college. The recent funding problems facing higher education has increased the necessity of students remaining enrolled through graduation. However, retention and student persistence is not one office's responsibility; since a student's decision to remain enrolled is affected by many and varied things, student retention must be a campus-wide initiative and campus-wide project. This workshop will provide information on the issue of retention, including information from the literature on student retention and strategies for developing campus-wide collaborations for increasing student retention. In addition, the workshop will provide information on institutional changes that must be made to positively affect retention. Participants will also have an opportunity to do hands-on work in small groups during the workshop.

Bibliography

Anderson, E. (1992). Forces influencing students persistence and achievement.

Astin, A.W. (1977). What matters most in college: Four Critical Years.

Astin, A.W. (1993). What matters most in college: Four Critical Years Revisited.

Banks, B., Biddle, B., Slavings, R. (1992). What do students want? Expectations and undergraduate persistence.

Burr, P., Burr, R., Novak, L. (1999). Student retention is more complicated than merely keeping the students you have today: Toward a "seamless retention theory."

Cabrera, A., Nora, A., Castaneda, M. (1993). College persistence: structural equations modeling test of an integrated model of student retention.

Crookston, P. (1989). Recruiting and retaining adult students.

Fujita, E. (1994). Retention survey of students: Suggestions for change and improvement and reasons why students leave.

Haverly, M. (1999). Predicting retention from students' experiences with the college process.

Lowe, A., Toney, M. (2000). Academic advising: Views of the givers and takers.

McLaughlin, G., Brozovsky, P., McLaughlin, J. (1998). Changing perspectives on student retention: A role for institutional research.

Noel, L., Levitz, R. & Saluri, D. (1985). Increasing Student Retention.

Pascarella, E., Terenzini, P. (1991). How college affects students.

Rendon, L. (1995). Facilitating retention and transfer for the first generation students in community colleges.

Tinto, V. (1987). Increasing student retention.